Festival “Stanislavska Marmulada”

The first Festival “Stanislavska Marmulada” took place in 2014. Throughout two days the marmalade (jam) is being prepared, and then it is served as a treat to all the guests of this artistic event. It is one of the highlights of the festival “Stanislavska Marmulada”. This festival is a kind of a journey into the history of the city, which recalls a story of “the marmalade fire”. According to the legend, a certain housewife was cooking plum marmalade in 1868 in Lypova Street, and got distracted from the process while chatting with a neighbor or a young dragoon. Meanwhile the wind picked up a little piece of a burning coal, making it float in the air, in an instant the roof was in flames, and within an hour the fire embraced the whole city center and destroyed one fourth of all the houses in Stanislaviv (up to 1962 Ivano-Frankivsk bore a name of Stanivlaviv). Since then the city started constructing houses using brick or stone as building material instead of wood, and set up its own fire brigade. This story is revealed by the hosts-actors of the feast – Mrs. Zosya and dragoon Bohdan. “Stanislavska Marmulada”, besides being a festival, is also an expo and a fair. Local winemakers, beekeepers, and honey-makers present their products at this venue. Such a “marmalade” festival takes place only in Ivano-Frankivsk. It is both – an exciting tourist attraction, and a promotion of natural, ecologically friendly products.
